Indian Health Service Internship For Students Opportunities

Description

The Indian Health Service (IHS) Internship Program offers diverse and meaningful opportunities for passionate students dedicated to serving American Indian and Alaska Native communities. As an intern, you'll gain valuable hands-on experience in various healthcare settings, collaborate with experienced professionals, and contribute to critical projects impacting the health and well-being of Indigenous populations. Choose from various internship tracks in medicine, nursing, pharmacy, dentistry, public health, social work, and more, aligning with your academic pursuits and career aspirations.

Responsibilities

- Assist healthcare professionals in delivering culturally competent services to patients in IHS facilities.
- Conduct research and data analysis, contributing to projects addressing specific health needs of Indigenous communities.
- Develop and implement educational programs or outreach initiatives promoting health awareness and disease prevention.
- Participate in community engagement activities, fostering trust and building relationships with tribal members.
- Gain exposure to clinical procedures, administrative functions, and research processes within the IHS.

Qualifications

- Currently enrolled in an accredited undergraduate or graduate program in a healthcare-related field or other relevant discipline.
- Strong interest in serving American Indian and Alaska Native communities.
- Demonstrated cultural competence and respect for diverse perspectives.
- Excellent communication, collaboration, and problem-solving skills.
- Ability to work independently and as part of a team in a fast-paced environment.
- Minimum GPA of 3.0 preferred for most programs.

Experience

- Previous volunteer or internship experience in healthcare or community service settings preferred, but not required.
- Bilingual skills in English and an Indigenous language a plus.
- Familiarity with tribal cultures and health issues a plus.

Skills

- Strong time management and organizational skills.
- Proficient in Microsoft Office Suite and other relevant software programs.
- Excellent written and verbal communication skills.
